Every person who registers brings hope to those waiting.

Join Canada's national stem cell registry in honour of six-year-old Hillary McKibbin.

This is Hillary. She has big dreams of being a rockstar. She is always singing. She has been diagnosed with Aplastic Anemia, an extremely rare and fatal disease, if left untreated. She is truly one in a million. She likely needs a bone marrow transplant as a life-saving treatment. With the swab of a cheek, you can find out if you're a match for one of 800 patients in Canada currently looking for a match like Hillary. Younger, male donors provide the best patient outcomes, but females can donate, too. All donors must be between 17-35 years old to join the stem cell registry in Canada. If you're a match, the procedure is safe with no lasting effects. It's time to give everyone an equal chance at life. Let's #StartWithHillary.
